Web Site Says Zarqawi Hurt

Posting coincides with increased intel on Iraq terror leader

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | A Web site that acts as the clearinghouse for messages from Abu Musab al-Zarqawi said Tuesday that Iraq's most-wanted militant had been wounded "for the sake of God" and asked Muslims to pray for his recovery.

The statement — unusual in that it seemed to seek sympathy for the Jordanian-born militant and possibly may even be preparing supporters for coming bad news — roughly coincided with hints that U.S. and Iraqi officials have recent, solid tips about al-Zarqawi's movements.

But U.S. officials cautioned they did not know if the posting was authentic, and privately said the information also may have been designed to mislead.

The statement was posted on a Web site known for carrying prior statements by al Qaeda in Iraq and other militant groups. The Arabic word for injury or wound used in the statement, "jarh," could mean that al-Zarqawi suffered either a wound in an attack or an accidental injury. But the context implies that he was wounded in an attack or battle.

The increasing number of tips and reports about the whereabouts of al-Zarqawi indicate he is increasingly in the line of vision of his pursuers. PATRICK QUINN (AP)

House Votes To Lift Limits On Stem Cells

WASHINGTON | Ignoring President Bush's veto threat, the House voted Tuesday to lift limits on embryonic stem cell research, a measure supporters say could accelerate cures for diseases such as Parkinson's but opponents describe as akin to abortion.

Bush called the bill a mistake and said he would veto it. The House approved it by a 238-194 vote, far short of the two-thirds majority needed to override a veto.

An alternative offered by Republican leaders that would fund research using stem cells derived from adults and umbilical cords rather than from embryos passed 430-1. But the focus was on the embryo bill.

The more controversial bill would lift Bush's 2001 ban on federal funding for new research using stem cells from embryos that had not been destroyed before August 2001.

The House vote on the so-called Castle-DeGette bill was intended mostly as a show of force to help propel it through the Senate and, the sponsors hope, into compromise talks with the White House. LAURIE KELLMAN (AP)

CRIME | Just Toying Around A tip for muggers and thugs: If you decide to pistol-whip a victim who won't cough up cash, don't do it with a plastic toy gun. Two men in Hong Kong tried to rob a 55-year-old parking-lot cleaner on Thursday. When the woman wouldn't hand over her money, they began hitting her on the head with a toy gun — until the barrel broke. The woman saw it was a fake and screamed for help, causing the muggers to drop the pistol and run away. (AP) EyeOpeners | Page 2

Tennessee's deputy finance commissioner spent 13 hours stuck in an elevator at the state Capitol earlier this month after no one paid the phone bill. A spokeswoman said the phone bill had been sent to the wrong department. (AP)

Getting a Leg Up

This calf was born earlier this month at a ranch in Tucumcari, N.M., with an extra leg — itself with two hooves — growing from its back. Owned by Orlando Romero of Sapello, N.M., the heifer was delivered naturally and, despite the extra limb, is in good physical condition. The leg is attached between the shoulder blades and hangs to the right side, not touching the ground. "It's just cosmetic. ... The little booger's doing good," said neighbor Shane Jennings, who first spotted her in the herd. (EXPRESS)

Math Nerds, Sports: Eternally a Bad Mix

North Carolina test writers fumbled a math question about football on a test this month. Seventh graders had to find the average gain for a team on the game's first six plays. Senate Clears Way for Owen Vote

Fresh off of filibuster deal, judicial nominee set for confirmation

WASHINGTON | Breaking years of gridlock, the Senate on Tuesday cleared the way for confirmation of Priscilla Owen to the U.S. appeals court amid fresh debate over an ambiguous compromise on President Bush's current and future judicial nominees.

The vote was 81-18 to clear Owen for a final vote after Democrats abandoned four years of blocking action, well above the 60 votes needed to cut off debate. That made confirmation a mere formality, with a vote set for midday Wednesday.

At the same time, senators disagreed over the precise meaning and staying power of a compromise forged by centrist senators Monday night that averted a showdown over judicial nominees — including any to the Supreme Court — and the Senate's own filibuster rules.

"I do not agree with it because it does not get the job done of ensuring fair, up-or-down votes on all judicial nominees sent to the Senate by the president," Majority Leader Bill Frist said in an e-mail to political supporters.

Democratic leader Harry Reid of Nevada disagreed.

"This agreement makes clear that the Senate rules have not changed. The filibuster remains available to the Senate minority," Reid said. DAVID ESPO (AP)

Freed Fla. Killer Arrested in Hold Up

Lionel Tate was jailed at age 12 for stomping 6-year-old girl to death

PEMBROKE PARK, FLA. | Lionel Tate, who was given a second chance after he beat and stomped a little girl to death when he was 12, was back behind bars Tuesday — exactly as some juvenile-justice experts had warned.

Tate, now 18, was charged Tuesday with holding up a pizza delivery man at gunpoint at a friend's apartment.

"We had a real chance. The right thing would have been to get this young man some help," said Michael Brannon, a forensic psychologist appointed by a judge to examine Tate after the 1999 killing of 6-year-old Tiffany Eunick.

Tate

Tate made global headlines in 2001 when he became the youngest person in modern U.S. history to be sentenced to life in prison.

The boy had claimed at first that he killed Tiffany while imitating pro wrestling moves he had seen on television, then later said he accidentally hurt the girl when he jumped on her from a staircase.

His conviction was overturned on appeal in 2004 and prosecutors gave him a plea bargain that included probation for 10 years. (AP)

Comedian recounts call with accuser in star's molestation trial

SANTA MARIA, CALIF. | After cracking Michael Jackson jokes for months, Jay Leno played it straight for the most part Tuesday at the pop star's child molestation trial, testifying that the boy at the center of the case sounded scripted over the telephone but never asked for money.

The defense called the "Tonight Show" comic to the stand to support its claim that the boy's family schemed to get money from celebrities like Jackson. The boy was suffering from cancer when he telephoned Leno.

Later in the day, the defense called actor Chris Tucker to the stand and said he would be their last witness, indicating Jackson will not testify.

ed on the witness stand, Leno finished with a lighthearted promo: "We have Renee Zellweger on the show tonight."

Leno testified he makes many calls to ill children, and at one point did an imitation of the mumbly way children usually speak to him — not the kind of forceful, adult presentation he heard from Jackson's accuser.

But Leno said the boy never asked for money and he never gave him any, though he did send "Tonight Show" memorabilia and a picture. LINDA DEUTSCH (AP)

England Waives Right To Challenge Charges

FORT HOOD, TEXAS | Pfc. Lynndie England on Tuesday surrendered her right to challenge the seven charges she faces in the Abu Ghraib prison abuse scandal, moving her one step closer to a new military trial.

Her defense attorney, Capt. Jonathan Crisp, would not provide details as to why he decided not to go forward with the Article 32 hearing — the military equivalent of a grand jury proceeding, in which it is determined whether there is enough evidence to go to trial. He said only that it was part of an "evolving trial strategy."

Now the decision on England's charges goes to Lt. Gen. Thomas Metz, Fort Hood's commanding general. He'll decide whether she'll face any or all of the charges.

Crisp said the waiver was not part of a deal with prosecutors. He said he did not think the sides would reach another plea agreement after England's initial guilty plea was rejected by a judge this month.

Study Clears Hair Dye of Cancer Risk

CHICAGO | A review of nearly 40 years of research suggests that hair dye poses little or no risk of cancer. Skeptics, however, say safety questions remain.

The report is the latest addition to a long debate over a cosmetic practice used by millions worldwide.

The new analysis pooled results from nearly 80 previous studies on numerous types of cancer, including bladder, breast, skin, leukemia and lymphoma.

The study's authors said the elimination of some carcinogenic substances in hair dyes in the 1970s might explain the results. (AP)

Hope Dims For EU Pact In France

Polls indicate Chirac is losing battle for 'yes' vote on constitution

PARIS | Mounting signs suggest that President Jacques Chirac's decision to call a referendum on Europe's future has backfired, with a string of polls pointing to a possibly humiliating defeat for the French leader.

A new poll Tuesday indicated that Chirac's opponents were gaining momentum in the last crucial days of campaigning before Sunday's vote that he called on the European Union's first constitution — a text that marks the next big step in a 50-year process of a European coming-together.

The new poll by the Ifop agency for Paris Match magazine showed the "no" camp taking 54 percent of the vote, compared with 46 percent for the "yes" camp. The poll was at least the 10th in 10 days to put the "no" camp ahead. No margin of error was given.

A French "no" could, at least temporarily, kill off the treaty and its stated goal of closer integration between the EU's 25 member states. They all must approve the constitution for it to go into effect. (AP)

Fear of Civil War Heightens in Iraq

U.S. death toll rises; northern city under siege

BAGHDAD | A car bomb exploded next to a U.S. Army convoy in Baghdad on Tuesday, killing three soldiers, while another American died in a drive-by shooting a half-hour later. Their deaths pushed the number of U.S. troops killed in three days to 14, part of a surge in attacks that has also killed about 60 Iraqis.

In the northern city of Tal Afar, there were reports that militants were in control and that Shiites and Sunnis were fighting in the streets, a day after two car bombs killed at least 20 people. Police Capt. Ahmed Hashem Taki said Tal Afar was experiencing "civil war." Journalists were blocked from entering the city of 200,000.

Eighteen U.S. troops have been killed in Iraq during the past week, raising concerns that insurgents may again be focusing their sights on American forces in addition to Shiite Muslims.

The deaths come as American troops are trying to pave the way for a graceful exit from Iraq by giving more responsibility to the country's security forces. But with the Iraqis still relatively weak, U.S. troops remain in the firing line.

More than 620 people, including 58 U.S. troops, have been killed since April 28. PAUL GARWOOD (AP)

China Scolds Tokyo for War Shrine Comments

BEIJING | China on Tuesday blamed Japanese comments about a war shrine for its decision to cut short a visit to Tokyo by one of Beijing's top officials, setting off a new round of sniping between the Asian powers as Japan demanded an apology for the apparent snub.

Chinese Vice Premier Wu Yi abruptly canceled a meeting with Japanese Prime Minister Junichiro Koizumi and left Tokyo on Monday in a move that appears to have shaken a tenuous truce between the two rivals, which are trying to dissipate ill will unleashed during anti-Japanese protests in China last month.

Kong Quan, a spokesman for China's Foreign Ministry, said Beijing was upset about remarks Japanese leaders made during Wu's eight-day trip concerning visits to the Yasukuni Shrine, which critics say glorifies Tokyo's militaristic past.

Koizumi, who has visited the Tokyo shrine four times since 2001, defended those trips at an appearance in parliament last week. (AP)

Thousands of vendors arrested; officials plan to raze squatter shacks

HARARE, ZIMBABWE | The government threatened Tuesday to demolish squatter shacks in what it called an urban beautification campaign after the arrests of about 10,000 street traders in the capital, a stronghold of the opposition.

The opposition accused the ruling ZANU-PF party of trying to provoke confrontations so it can declare a state of emergency before the tattered state of the economy leads to riots.

"It is obvious these are all punitive measures aimed at urban people who voted against ZANU-PF," said Paul Themba-Nyathi, spokesman for the opposition Movement for Democratic Change.

Mugabe

A five-day blitz against street vendors already has sparked clashes between the traders and police. Police Chief Superintendent Oliver Mandipaka said Monday that 9,653 people have been arrested.

On Tuesday, the government of longtime leader Robert Mugabe set a June 20 deadline for demolishing unauthorized buildings in Harare unless the residents appeal and receive a grace period. The demolitions could evict more than a million urban poor. (AP)

Climbing Out of (Some) Debt

College students rely less on credit cards, but only just slightly

NEW YORK | College students remain big fans of credit cards, but they're carrying fewer of them and using them less.

A study released Tuesday by college lender Nellie Mae found that 76 percent of undergraduates carried credit cards in 2004, down from a peak of 83 percent in 2001, when the last survey was made.

They carried an average of four cards last year, and their outstanding balances averaged a total of $2,169. While a seemingly hefty number, that was down from $2,327 in 2001 and $2,748 in 2000, the study found.

"Back in 2000 and 2001, people were shocked at what was going on in the undergraduate community," said Marie O'Malley, a vice president at Nellie Mae. "There were calls for legislation, banning credit card vendors on campus ... and a strong push for more financial education. We'd like to think some of that [education] is sinking in."

O'Malley said there were indications in the latest survey that students were using credit responsibly: More than half of the undergraduates with credit cards carried balances below $1,000, and more than one in five students paid their credit card balances in full every month. On the other hand, 11 percent say they can't pay even the minimum, the study found.

Fewer college students began the school year with credit cards in 2004 than in 2001 and their average balance was lower, according to a new study.

Record Pace for Home Sales

WASHINGTON | Existing homes were sold in April at the fastest pace in history as the nation's red-hot housing market just kept getting hotter.

The National Association of Realtors reported Tuesday that existing single-family homes and condominiums were sold at a seasonally adjusted rate of 7.18 million units last month, a gain of 4.5 percent from a revised March sales pace of 6.87 million units.

The strength in sales, which was attributed to further declines in mortgage rates, put new upward pressure on prices. The median cost rose to a record $206,000, up 15.1 percent over a year ago.

That represented the biggest 12-month gain in prices since November 1980 and added to concerns that the housing industry could be experiencing a speculative bubble similar to the stock market bubble that popped in the spring of 2000.

By region, sales were up 7 percent in the South, 5.8 percent in the Midwest and 4.3 percent in the Northeast. They were unchanged in the West last month. (AP)

Pentagon says laser system wouldn't work through the clouds

WASHINGTON | A new system of lasers designed to warn pilots that they've entered restricted airspace wasn't turned on during the latest airspace violation for the same reason the radio of the wandering plane didn't work: the weather. The plane, flying to Gaithersburg, Md., from Knoxville, Tenn., on Monday had permission to fly in the airspace because he had filed a flight plan and had maintained radio contact with air traffic control, Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Greg Martin said.

But lightning struck the small Canadian aircraft and he lost his radio, Martin said Tuesday. The pilot never got closer than 10 miles from the White House, he said. Once the plane's communications went out, fighters took off from Andrews Air Force Base in suburban Maryland and escorted it to the Gaithersburg airport. To avoid the expense of scrambling fighter jets to escort errant planes away from the restricted area in and around the capital city, the Pentagon on Saturday had inaugurated a system of red-and-green warning lasers. A Pentagon spokeswoman said lasers weren't turned on Monday because the pilot couldn't have seen them through the clouds. LESLIE MILLER (AP)

TSA to Open Reagan to Private Planes

WASHINGTON | Private planes will be allowed to take off and land at Reagan National Airport for the first time since Sept. 11, 2001, the Transportation Security Administration is expected to announce Wednesday, according to people in government and aviation. Congress has long been pressuring the TSA to reopen the airport to charter aircraft, business jets and private planes, but the TSA has been reluctant because it's so close to the Capitol and the White House. (AP)

Man Charged With Killing Wife in '78

FAIRFAX, VA. | Twenty-seven years after his wife was found strangled in a Tysons Corner hotel, a husband surrendered to police Tuesday and was charged with her murder.

Mona Lisa Abney, then 25, was visiting from Richmond when her body was discovered on Jan. 28, 1978, in her room at a Holiday Inn. The case went unsolved until detectives from the Homicide Cold Case Unit took a renewed interest.

"They re-opened the case. They reinterviewed everyone, went over all the past reports," said Mary Mulrenan, a spokeswoman for the Fairfax

Abney

County Police Department. They also recently sent DNA from the crime scene to a lab for new analysis, and a match came up.

Police said all of this led them to Abney's husband, Wilbert Abney Jr., 55, who turned himself in at police headquarters and was ordered held without bond.

Mulrenan declined to discuss a motive. MICHAEL W. KAHN (AP)

Upheaval at the Corcoran

Plans for a flashy new wing at the Corcoran Gallery of Art, an old and respected museum that has seen its fortunes fall with the economy and post-Sept. 11 security, have been suspended and the gallery's longtime director is leaving as a result. David C. Levy, the Corcoran's director for 14 years, is resigning effective May 30, the museum announced Tuesday. Levy clashed with Board of Trustees Chairman John T. Hazel, who opposed building the $60 million addition by architect Frank Gehry because not enough money had been raised. (AP)

FAUX PAS: Sammy Sosa came off the 15-day DL Tuesday, still angry that some people suspected he feigned a foot injury to miss the Orioles' trip to Chicago from May 12-15. "I wanted to be there so bad," said Sosa, out since May 4.

Johnson's Group Buys the Mystics

BET co-founder to be team's president after purchase from Pollin

MYSTICS | Former television executive Sheila Johnson on Tuesday joined a group that purchased the Washington Mystics.

Johnson, co-founder of Black Entertainment Television, became a part-owner of Lincoln Holdings LLC, which purchased the Mystics from Abe Pollin's Washington Sports & Entertainment. Lincoln Holdings, founded by AOL executive Ted Leonsis, owns the Washington Capitals and is a 45-percent partner in the Washington Wizards and MCI Center, which Pollin also owns.

The Mystics said Johnson is believed to be the first black woman to be a part-owner of three professional sports franchises. Johnson's stake in Lincoln Holdings is between 5 percent and 10 percent.

Leonsis said Johnson will hold the titles of president and managing partner of the Mystics.

The purchase price for Pollin's share of the Mystics was about $5.5 million, which would put the franchise's worth at about $10 million.

The sale is the latest transfer of Pollin's holdings to Leonsis' group. In 1999, Lincoln Holdings bought the Capitals from Pollin, but Leonsis has said that team has consistently lost money. The Mystics, meanwhile, have led the WNBA in attendance five times since 1998.

"I will say that the Mystics are managed and have been running better than the Washington Capitals. At least they're playing and have a shot at making money," Leonsis said. (AP)

LIONEL CIRONE/ALP

From the third set on against Jarkko Nieminen Tuesday, Andre Agassi was hurting.

Agassi Loses at French

Nerve damage could be the end for tennis star

TENNIS | His back rigid, his feet shuffling in stutter steps, his face contorted from a burning pain down his leg, Andre Agassi arrived at a crisis in his career.

His future in tennis hinges not so much on his age, 35, as on the inflamed sciatic nerve that flared up and rendered him helpless in the middle of his first-round match at the French Open. It's the kind of chronic injury that has sent other champions into retirement, and it could ultimately do that to Agassi, even if he's not quite ready to walk away.

He's fought that pain for months, sought relief from it with cortisone, but felt it come back with a vengeance Tuesday when it radiated from his lower back to his right hip and down to his ankle. Groundstrokes hurt. Serves hurt more. Agassi considered quitting the match even when he led two sets to one, but he grimaced and played to the end, eventually succumbing in five sets to No. 95-ranked qualifier Jarkko Nieminen.

"It was getting worse by the minute," Agassi said of the pain that struck him in the third set of his 7-5, 4-6, 6-7 (6), 6-1, 6-0 loss. "I knew it wasn't going to be pretty after that. But I didn't want to walk off. I just didn't want to do it." STEVE WILSTEIN (AP)

Clean Sports Act Proposal Brought Before Congress

WASHINGTON | Athletes in the four major U.S. professional leagues would be subject to two-year bans for a first positive drug test under legislation proposed Tuesday that would put the leagues' doping policies under the government's Office of National Drug Control Policy.

Sen. John McCain joined the House of Representatives' Government Reform Committee chairman Tom Davis and ranking Democrat Henry Waxman of California in introducing the Clean Sports Act of 2005.

It's the second recent bill that would establish minimum, standardized doping policies across American sports. Rep. Cliff Stearns proposed the Drug Free Sports Act of 2005 last month, and his panel will write the formal legislation Wednesday.

Sen. John McCain was part of a group to introduce the bill on Tuesday.

Earlier, at a hearing about funding for the U.S. Anti-Doping Agency, McCain said the group that oversees U.S. Olympic athletes' drug testing and punishment could do the same for professional leagues. (AP)

WHO KNEW? Still seeking his first win of the season, Dale Earnhardt Jr. on Tuesday replaced his crew chief in an attempt to turn his team around. Shaquille O'Neal attracts a crowd of reporters after Tuesday's practice. Tired or not, O'Neal said he wants the ball more when Miami plays Detroit on Wednesday.

Miami Feels the Heat After Loss

O'Neal's health still in question heading into Game 2 vs. the Pistons

NBA | Relief was the overwhelming sensation Ben Wallace felt when he saw Shaquille O'Neal sent to the bench for a rest just six minutes into the first quarter of Game 1.

"Four dunks," Wallace recalled. "I don't think he looked like he was winded at all. To me, he looked like he was gaining strength."

Coach Stan Van Gundy removed O'Neal at the behest of the Miami Heat's medical staff, which wanted O'Neal's playing time limited to stretches of 5-7 minutes. Van Gundy also was told to monitor O'Neal's rest time with equal vigor.

That gave the coach one more problem to manage on a night when he already had his hands full trying to stop the Detroit Pistons, and the end result was a loss — the Heat's first of the postseason.

The Pistons will try to take a 2-0 lead when the series resumes Wednesday night.

O'Neal, playing with a bruised right thigh, scored only 12 more points the rest of the night.

The Pistons adjusted by stationing Wallace in front of O'Neal and daring the Heat to get the ball to their big man with lobs rather than bounce passes.

The strategy limited O'Neal's touches, and he attempted only three shots in the fourth quarter — a statistic that seemed to irk O'Neal when it was brought up after practice Tuesday.

"They just need to come to me," O'Neal said. "Tired or not, just send it to me." CHRIS SHERIDAN (AP)

The Ghost of a Song

The Manic Street Preachers let go of their haunted history

PREACHING TO THE CHOIR | The Manic Street Preachers are seven studio albums into an illustrious career, but the Welsh rock act is embracing the past as it heads into the future.

Singer/guitarist James Dean Bradfield, bassist Nicky Wire and drummer Sean Moore released the critically acclaimed "Lifeblood" last year. In March, the band re-issued its landmark 1994 album, "The Holy Bible," as an expanded DVD/two-CD package, and Bradfield admits there are a few similarities between the two projects.

"Both albums are kind of obsessed with the darker aspects of your personal self but 'Lifeblood' perhaps comes up with more positive answers," he said.

Bradfield said the toughest of the 20 songs to finish was "Cardiff Afterlife," which deals with Richey Edwards, the band's guitarist and lyricist who disappeared in February 1995.

The song marked the first time the band addressed Edwards' disappearance in its music. Bradfield says being a decade removed from the incident changed the perspective surrounding the tragedy, giving the Manics a sense of clarity.

The group confronted its past when going over material for the expanded edition of "The Holy Bible," including early footage that had been locked away for years.

Bradfield only recently separated himself from Edwards creatively. "Up 'til about two years ago ... I was still using Richey in my head as a mental checklist," he admitted. "But I stopped doing that. I think it's healthy for us to stop doing that."

The Manics remain superstars in the United Kingdom, but have no plans to tour in North America anytime soon. "The biggest thing is we're not quite sure who is going to turn up if we play a concert in the U.S.A. or Canada," Bradfield said.

What is quite sure is that the band plans on taking a long break after touring behind "Lifeblood." But Bradfield downplays the constant speculation that this album will be the Manics' swan song.

"The fact that we will take a long break will turn into another rumor," he said. "So we just have to accept that." JASON MACNEIL (BILLBOARD.COM)

Jay-Z Still Rapping in Retirement

NOT LEISURE VILLAGE | How great is Jay-Z? Well, retirement isn't exactly the most exciting topic. Jay-Z's retirement from rap, in particular, has already been played out and picked over.

Yet on his new song "Dear Summer" (Roc-a-Fella), Jigga puts over some great rhymes about his decision to leave a career as a performer for his job as Def Jam's CEO. "I got a brand new bitch — corporate America, she's showing me a lot of action right now," he raps.

To show how good he is at his new job, Jay has placed "Dear Summer" on the new Beanie Siegel album "534," which should give that album — part of the Def Jam family, natch — a nice sales boost.

Duel in the Dust Bowl

Elmore Leonard's two-fisted tales are only getting better

BOOKS | When you're as good a crime writer as Elmore Leonard, there's no one left to top except yourself. And now, at 79, he's done that, too. Leonard's 40th book, "The Hot Kid," is his finest.

In some respects, it is a throw-back to Leonard's early crime novels — grim and violent tales of vengeful vigilantes and heroic police officers.

"The Hot Kid" is set in Dust Bowl-era Oklahoma, which the author portrays as an anything-goes time of moonshiners, speak-easies, coal mine strikes and snap brim fedoras. It was a time when bank robbery was the national pastime.

The hero of the tale is Deputy U.S. Marshall Carl Webster.

He's just 15 when we first meet him, eating a peach ice cream cone in Deering's drug store in Okmulgee when a famous bank robber named Emmet Long strolls in for a deck of Luckies. On a whim, Long robs the place, shoots down a policeman and swipes Carl's ice cream cone.

Years later, Carl finds Long and guns him down. Before he does, he gives Long a chance to surrender, telling him: "If I have to pull my weapon, I'll shoot to kill."

This becomes his tag line, one he delivers almost every time he plugs a bank robber — which he does from cover to cover, his exploits chronicled in purple prose by Tony Antonelli of True Detective magazine.

Carl's nemesis is a born-rich psychopath named Jack Belmont, whose goal is to become Public Enemy No. 1. These two superbly drawn characters drive the plot.

"The Hot Kid" is a subtle and provocative exploration of myth-making, of how America makes criminals and, sometimes, the brave men who track them down, into legends. BRUCE DESILVA (AP)

Television

SNEAK PEEK: The film “Serenity,” based on the short-lived cult TV series “Firefly,” will screen on Thursday at Loews Georgetown at 10 p.m. — four months before its release date. That should keep the Browncoats quiet for 10 minutes.

The Mistress’ Tale

Amber Frey’s sordid love story gets the TV-movie treatment

DUMB BLONDES | Starring Janel Moloney of “The West Wing,” the sordid tale of “Amber Frey: Witness for the Prosecution” (9 p.m., CBS) unfolds like an anti-romance novel written by a sadist. (Imagine “Sleepless in Seattle” if Tom Hanks turned out to be a serial killer.) A single mother thinks she’s found a Mr. Right named Scott Petersen (Nathan Anderson) only to find out he’s a liar, a sociopath and most probably a murderer.

DEAR IN THE HEADLIGHTS: Moloney plays Frey as a stunned, vulnerable girl.

Moloney is perfectly cast here as Frey, who is both vulnerable and strangely robotic as she cooperates with local authorities to build a case against her glib former lover. To add insult to injury, it seems her best friend (Paget Brewster), who set her up with Scott, may be the source of hurtful tabloid stories. Frey also becomes pregnant (by another acquaintance, not Scott) during her legal ordeal, leading talk radio jokers to taunt her.

Nora Dunn stars as Frey’s lawyer, Gloria Allred. Dunn’s portrayal of the cable news celebrity attorney is remarkably similar to her impersonation of cable celebrity commentator Arianna Huffington in the recent TV biopic “See Arnold Run.” KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

ON TV TONIGHT

AMERICA VOTED ... FOR ONCE
AMERICAN IDOL (8 p.m., Fox) wraps up its fourth season with a two-hour spectacle that will seem 90 minutes too long.

THERE ARE WORSE SHTICKS
American Masters offers the 2004 documentary CARY GRANT: A CLASS APART (9 p.m., PBS). The film contends that Grant’s suave screen identity was both his creation and a kind of creative trap.

HABEUS CORPUS, INDEED
LAW & ORDER (8 p.m., NBC) A promiscuous lawyer perishes.

RAFT VS. HATCH
LOST (8 p.m., ABC) The raft contingent has a strange encounter as the islanders contend with the hatch on the two-hour season finale.

‘IDOL’ HOURS: Competitors Bo and Carrie can stop pretending to get along.

MAYBE JACK BAUER CAN SAVE IT
ALIAS (10 p.m., ABC) A world in peril on the season finale.

YOU ARE NO ‘O.C.’
ONE TREE HILL (8 p.m., WB) Jimmy Eat World performs on the season finale.KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Investment-Grade Shoes

Hu's Shoes

3005 M Street NW; 202-342-0202
Mon.-Sat. 11 a.m.-8 p.m.; Sun. 12 p.m.-6 p.m.

The onslaught of new stores on M Street continues with the opening of Hu's Shoes, a high-end women's shoe boutique. You won't find your Blahniks and Choos here, though — this is a store for those who are so in the know about shoes that little-known labels hold more attraction than the big hitters. Hu's appeals to the shoe equivalent of those music fans who liked Modest Mouse right up until the group played on "The O.C." — those who believe that coolness comes only with obscurity.

→ Style: Although the space is small, Hu's manages to stock a variety of styles that would appeal to anyone (well, anyone who has $300 or more to spend on shoes). While some major lines are represented, most of the stock is made up of smaller, lesser-known lines. My favorite find was Kristen Lee, whose bubblegum-pink slides with toe cut-outs and slight heel ($255) are a nice mix of formal and fun. Some styles, like the coral-embellished Miss Trish of Capri sandals ($408) are up-to-the-minute trendy and will soon be arriving at a high-end consignment shop near you. Others, such as Barbara Bui's black and cream round-toe heel, have a classic, almost retro shape that makes the shoe a worthy investment — it won't go out of style anytime soon. At $445, that's a good thing. There are some missteps; a John Varvados leather sandal looks like a squashed Birkenstock, rendering the $225 price tag incomprehensible. The store is at its best when it walks the line between classic and trendy, as with a Marc Jacobs cream ballet flat ($455) that embodies the best of designer shoes — lovely lines and superb craftsmanship. These are shoes that you buy, wear constantly for a season, then put in storage. When the trend returns 10 years later, they're still perfect.

Coral is in; Miss Trish of Capri uses it well. ($408)

Barbara Bui walks the line between classic and funky. ($445)

→ Price: Dizzily high-end. The shoes start around $250 and soar skyward from there. That these designers are high-end without necessarily being well-known means you not only get great shoes, your feet get street cred when you wear them.

→ Service: Owner Marlene Hu Aldaba is one of those people who give great customer service and make it seem effortless. On one visit, she easily answered my questions about the lines I wasn't familiar with, chatted with me about the perils of stilettos and didn't bat an eyelash when I left without buying anything. On a subsequent visit, she not only remembered me, she remembered which shoes I had tried on. She also seems comfortable with browsers who want to see what $300 looks like when transformed into shoe form.

→ Bonus Points: The unassuming storefront and spare decor makes it quite clear that these are shoes for adults, meaning that the credit-card-armed teenagers marauding down M Street tend to pass Hu's by.

→ Bureaucracy: Store credit or exchange on unworn shoes with receipt within 10 days.
→ Bottom Line: High-end shoes and high-end service make Hu's a worthy stop — even if it's just to ogle shamelessly.

If you're going to spend $455 on a shoe, make it as pretty as this one.

One would think a $225 shoe would be attractive. One would be wrong.

Stricter rules coming for pickers of the wild, flavorful ramp

Demand for ramps — a wild leek prized for its strong flavor — is expanding far from the mountains, propelled by a craze for regional and seasonal food. So great is the appeal that officials are trying to limit the annual harvest.

Beginning next year, civic groups that pick wild ramps in North Carolina's Nantahala National Forest for use in spring festivals will have to abide by new Forest Service rules that dictate where and how to pick the plants as well as levy a 50-cent-a-pound fee.

The reason for the change: The government worries that big digs of ramps are straining natural populations. A Forest Service researcher eager to help preserve the festivals is accompanying the civic groups on this year's digs to get a better handle on the true toll from their hauls.

"If we don't figure out a way to manage them, they'll be gone," researcher Jim Chamberlain said. "If there are no more ramps, there will be no more ramp festivals."

People in North Carolina still hike miles to pick enough ramps — which taste like a mix of garlic and scallions — for special suppers during the four weeks or so that the plants show themselves each spring.

In addition to other rules, the Forest Service says groups digging for festivals will not be allowed to take more than half of the plants they find in every square foot of a ramp patch.

Volunteer firehouses, rescue squads and civic groups have long staged annual ramp festivals to raise money for community causes. Organizers of the biggest festivals collectively pick more than 3,000 pounds of ramps each year, Chamberlain estimated. It takes 40 to 80 plants to make a pound.

Ramps range naturally from Canada to North Georgia and west to Missouri and Minnesota. In Southern Appalachia, ramps are Paris tries to revamp her image by wearing something without cleavage.

CONTROVERSY Carl's Jr. Ad Scapegoat — Parents Just Hate Paris

A Carl's Jr. commercial starring a scantily clad PARIS HILTON frolicking with a water hose is too hot for a media watchdog group. "This commercial is basically soft-core porn," said Melissa Caldwell, research director for the Los Angeles-based Parents Television Council. "It's inappropriate for television." The Los Angeles Times reported Tuesday that the group plans to mobilize its more than 1 million members to protest and is considering asking the Federal Communications Commission to declare the ad indecent. The commercial shows the hotel heiress and reality TV star vamping in a revealing swimsuit as she soaps and rinses a black Bentley. (AP)

GUSHING

Get A Grip, Renee

Freshly married RENEE ZELLWEGER got her very own star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame on Tuesday, Agence France Presse reported. "The reality of this just hit me a few seconds ago and I am dumbfounded," she said at her ceremony on Hollywood Boulevard. "I never ever imagined a day like this or that I would ever be invited to be part of this legacy. I'm dying right now," she added. Hers is the 2,286th star on the sidewalk. Zellweger's latest film, "Cinderella Man," opens in less than two weeks. She co-stars as the wife of boxer James Braddock, played by Russell Crowe. (EXPRESS)

It is very much hoped there will be a "Ghost Whisperer" crossover episode.

The WB: A Place to Try, Fail, Then Try and Fail Again

JARED PADALECKI knew better than to count on his new drama being picked up by a TV network. "Young MacGyver" never made it on the air. So it came as a happy surprise when "Supernatural" was picked up by the WB for the fall season. "Supernatural," which also stars JENSEN ACKLES ("Smallville"), traces two young, good-looking brothers who fight evil ghosts. (AP)

Meanwhile, Phil's Lawyer Fired His Client's Stylist

Prosecutors can introduce evidence in PHIL SPECTOR's murder trial to try to show the famed music producer had a history of threatening women before he was charged with killing a B-movie actress in his home two years ago, a Los Angeles Superior Court judge ruled Monday. Spector is charged with murdering Lana Clarkson at his Alhambra mansion in early 2003. He has pleaded not guilty and is free on $1 million bail. (AP)

When threatened, Phil Spector's hair will flare out as a defensive measure.

Stallone said he completed the script in 2002 but the project didn't come together until this week. (AP)

Ken Jennings Becomes Aspirational Lifestyle Brand

More than pride, a cottage industry may be at stake when "Jeopardy!" ace KEN JENNINGS takes on two challengers in the game show's $2 million challenge that airs this week. Comedy Central said Monday it has signed Jennings to be the central figure in a new game show the channel is developing with Michael Davies, the producer responsible for "Who Wants to Be a Millionaire." That goes along with the upcoming board game "Can You Beat Ken?" and the "Quizzology" CD-ROM trivia game that he's behind. Jennings is also writing a book, due out next year from publisher Random House. (AP)

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't get carried away and play games with the wrong people. There are those who will see through you instantly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be warned: first know what you are going to do before you do it. Lack of preparation can prove disastrous to a current project.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll feel a sense of belonging, which will have you reconsidering your current situation. A small change can do the trick.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may be unusually vulnerable to flattery — so don't let yourself get carried away. Stay rooted in the here and now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You may find that a good friend is drifting further and further away. Take the opportunity now to reaffirm your close connection.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) This is a good day to entertain a wider scope of options than you have in the recent past. Don't limit yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Your instincts are likely to put up a fight if you try to resist them. Indeed, you know unconsciously just what to do.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Approach the negative in a philosophical vein and you'll find the positive lying dormant deep within. Overreaction can only be risky.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You're in the mood to be pampered — but you may have to wait until the right person comes along. Not just anyone can please you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You're more interested in discussion and talking things over than you are in pressing your point and making demands.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's time for you to figure out just what a friend is expecting from you. You may discover that you're almost in over your head.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't ignore impulses that lead you back to your roots. It's important to determine just how you can best be true to yourself.
